Intimate Partner Violence & Migration Through the Lens of International Human Rights Law

Written by Bryn Pfeifer, Master of Human Rights (MHR) Practicum Student

The connection between intimate partner violence (IPV) and human rights transcends beyond the notion of 'rights' that are violated when an individual is subject to IPV. Human rights are tied to a States' obligation to respect, protect and fulfil these rights. For example, the right to life is captured in article 3 of The Universal Declaration of Human Rights as well as section 7 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms (both bodies of law that Canada is bound by). In the context of IPV, the right to life may be violated if someone experiencing IPV reports to police or any other public official that they fear their life is in danger, and no action is taken ... RESOLVE Tri-Provincial Project Updates

Responding to Women who Experience Intimate Partner Violence in Rural Municipalities Across the Prairies

Our study explored rural women's experiences of intimate partner violence and help-seeking across the Prairies. A summary of our findings is now available on the RESOLVE website. Additionally, we have developed two informative briefs:

1. Policy Brief: This document highlights the key findings that have significant implications for policymakers, providing insights to shape effective policies addressing the gaps and barriers that rural women face when seeking help.
2. Practice Brief: This brief is tailored to practitioners and service providers, offering findings that can guide their efforts in delivering services to those affected by intimate partner violence in rural areas of the Prairies.

Examining the Nature & Context of IPV in 2SLGBTQ+ Communities

The RESOLVE team presented findings from the research project entitled Examining the Nature and Context of IPV in 2SLGBTQ+ Communities at the Leading Change Summit in Edmonton, Alberta on May 4, 2023. The summit also featured keynote speaker Jonathan Van Ness (from the Netflix show "Queer Eye"), who spoke about the importance of using platforms, both big and small, to advocate for gender equality. The RESOLVE team also travelled to Reykjavik, Iceland in September to present research findings from the project at the European Conference on Domestic Violence.

Attachment and Child Health (ATTACH™)

The ATTACH™ psychoeducational parenting program, co-created by Drs. Nicole Letourneau and Martha Hart, is designed for families vulnerable to toxic stressors such as domestic violence, mental health problems, and low-income. Pilot studies were undertaken with 90 Alberta mothers and their birth to six-year-old children over the last 6 years. Findings have been published, revealing significant positive impacts of ATTACH™ on mothers' reflective functioning, security of children's attachment to their mothers, mother-child relationship quality, mothers' executive function, and children's development, behaviour, and sleep. Alliance Against Violence and Adversity (AVA) National Health Research Training Platform

For nearly 30 years, preventing and addressing violence against girls and women has been a policy priority across Canada, yet this social problem persists with family violence rates increasing and girls and women's health and wellness outcomes worsening.

To address these issues, Canadian Institutes of Health Research funds have been awarded to AVA, a collaborative, innovative, cross-sectoral/disciplinary/jurisdictional national health research training platform. AVA will train hundreds of Canadian scholars (graduate students and postdoctoral fellows), service providers and academics in the social services/community health field working to address violence and break down silos and barriers of inequity.
